

AT&T offers local service to residential and business customers in the southeastern United States. Through processes that range from manual to highly automated, AT&T offers Competitive Local Exchange Carriers (CLECs) the ability to receive their billing information in a variety of bill formats and through different delivery options. AT&T's business processes address the quality and integrity of the data transmitted when it is being gathered, processed, and presented to the CLEC in its desired format. These business processes allow the CLEC to receive billing information for resale or facility-based services throughout the nine-state region.
